SPAFFORD SCORES WARD FOR VOTE

Against Adjusted Compensation In Congress—Quotes General Washington In Support of Principle.

WILL COST LEGION VOTES

Vote According to Beliefs, Not To Gain Votes, Replies Congressman.

Edward E. Spafford, state commander of the American Legion, has written Congressman Charles B. Ward of this district, protesting against Mr. Ward's action in voting against the adjusted compensation bill in the house of representatives. Copies of the letter were also sent chairman of the legion in Ulster and other counties in Mr. Ward's district.

Commander Spafford's letter and Mr. Ward's reply are as follows:

The American Legion Dept. New York State Headquarters, New York City.

March 27th, 1924.

Honorable Charles B. Ward, M. C., House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Congressman:

I very much regret that you should have seen fit to vote against Adjusted Compensation. It is sad to feel that because a man bore arms for his country in '17 and '18 that he should be penalized and required to not only bear the physical burden of the war but the financial one as well without any sign of gratitude from a man of your experience.

Historically, the payment of adjusted compensation in this country has been followed until the Civil War. Washington stated in his letter of June 18, 1783:

"Where is the man to be found who wishes to remain indebted for the defense of his own person and property at the exertions, the bravery and the blood of others, without making one generous effort to pay the debt of honor and gratitude? In what part of the continent shall we find any many, or body of men, who would not blush to stand up and propose measures purposely calculated to rob the soldier of his stipend and the public creditor of his due? And were it possible that such a flagrant instance of injustice could ever happen, would it not excite the general indignation and tend to bring down upon the authors of such measures the aggravated vengeance of heaven?"

That band of men have been found in this country, and I know of nothing which tends to pull down the traditions more than for the country to pay its just debt to those men who when danger was nigh had to bear the brunt of the burden.

After King Philip's War, the veterans went to the courts because they did not receive adequate compensation for their services. The court decided in their favor, and what was the congress of that day, declined to make the appropriations which the court ordered. Payment was made fifty-four years after, and only 19 veterans of that war were then living.

Your action shows that you well might have served in the councils of the Bay State Colonies. I don't suppose that you desire the support of those whom you failed to support, but I believe you will find that your failure to vote for the payment of the just debt is resented by over 95 per cent of the veterans within your congressional district.

I beg to remain

Very Truly Yours,
EDWARD E. SPAFFORD,
per S. W.

April 10, 1024.

Edward E. Spafford, Commander, The American Legion, Department of New York, New York.

My Dear Commander:

Your letter of March 27th received and read carefully.

In reply, wish to say that from your letter I deduct that you believe that my vote on legislation here in the house of representatives is first weighed as to the effect that such vote would have on my re-election to office. I want to say to you that my decisions are not made in this manner. I vote on pending legislation in accordance as I believe it will be for the best interests of the country, both present and future, and the fact that my vote on the bonus bill did not meet with your approval does not necessarily mean that I was wrong. I had my beliefs and conviction when I opposed this measure, and my action in opposition was just as earnest and honest as was convictions when I opposed this measure.

I can assure you that while in office I will continue to vote on legislation according to my beliefs and convictions, always having in mind the welfare of the country, regardless of the effect of such vote on my political future.

I beg to remain, sincerely yours,
CHARLES B. WARD.

Dem. Senators Full of Fight

Will Redouble Efforts to Make It Hot for Secretary Mellon and Bureau of Internal Revenue Through Investigation.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 12.—Smarting under what they termed the "stinging rebuke" of the senate by President Coolidge, Democratic leaders announced today that they would wage a finish fight to continue the investigation of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and his bureau of internal revenue.

Not only did the minority chiefs resent the president's attack on the inquiry launched by Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, but they charged that the administration had gone on record as "challenging the very power and authority of congressional committees" in making investigations. One of those particularly up in arms was Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, Montana, who believes, that without naming him, the president has criticized his conduct of the investigation of naval oil reserves.

Renewing his own attack upon the secretary of treasury in face of intimations that Mellon will quit the cabinet "if government by investigation" does not stop, Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, threatened to press for action on his resolution for an investigation of Mellon's eligibility to hold office. The resolution has been permitted to rest on the table at the suggestion of Senator Robinson of Arkansas and other Democratic leaders.

The president's special message, defending Mellon and criticizing the senate was received enthusiastically by administration senators. Senator Watson, Republican, Indiana, who had proposed the halting of the Couzens inquiry before the president's message was delivered, described Mr. Coolidge's attitude as a "master stroke." Insurgent Republicans and Democrats were quick to deny that Senator Couzens was actuated by personal motives alone in his assaults on Mellon and the treasury department.

Fireworks were promised when the fight opens in the senate, probably today, on the resolution of Senator Jones, Democrat, New Mexico, authorizing the Couzens committee to employ special counsel to assist in the internal revenue probe.

PROTEST AGAINST BIGGER PARCEL POST RATES

The Greene County Farm Bureau directors have adopted a resolution asking United States Senators Wadsworth and Copeland and Congressman Ward to take a stand against all legislation for an increase of parcel post and fourth class mail rates. This action is based upon the fact that farmers are heavy shippers by parcel post, especially since freight rates are prohibitive in many cases. It is believed that any increase of parcel post rates will check the distribution of farm commodities to the ultimate consumer and in turn boost the cost of living.

Sinclair to Waive Jury Trial

Will Ask Judge to Decide Committee's Power Taking Case to Highest Court if Necessary.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 12.—Promising a fight to the supreme court of the United States, attorneys for Harry F. Sinclair, multi-millionaire lessee of Teapot Dome, announced that the oil magnate would again plead "not guilty" in court here today to an indictment charging him with contempt of the senate refusal to answer questions propounded by members of the public lands committee.

Martin W. Littleton, chief of Sinclair's legal staff, arrived in Washington this morning to file a demurrer to the indictment.

Holding that the question of Sinclair's contempt was one of law rather than of fact, Littleton was expected to demand that the case be tried before a judge, waiving a jury trial. Special counsel for the government, Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, were understood to be favorable to Littleton's suggestion.

Settlement of the issues raised in Sinclair's refusal to answer questions was regarded as of supreme importance to determine the power and authority of congressional committees to investigate idividuals and corporations and compel attendance of witnesses and records.

Stove Explodes at Cementon; Man And Wife Dying in Hospital Here

About 5:30 o'clock this morning Mrs. Marina Lancanese arose at her home in Cementon to get breakfast for herself and husband. In order to start a fire in the kitchen she poured what she thought was some kerosene oil into the stove. The stove exploded and her clothing caught fire. Her screams brought her husband to the scene and in trying to extinguish the flames of the wife's clothing his clothing ignited.

Dr. R. F. Diedling of Saugerties received a hurry call to the house and found that both husband and wife were probably fatally burned. He rushed them to the Benedictine Hospital where they are being attended by Drs. W. J. and J. G. O'Leary.

It is believed that the kerosene can contained gasoline which caused the stove to blow up.

At the Benedictine Hospital it was stated this morning that both man and wife would probably die from their burns. They are Italians.

Alsen Landslide Slow of Removal

The recent landslide which covered the state highway at Alsen with many tons of debris may require considerable time for removal. It has been necessary to send for a steam shovel, which was shipped by railroad, and several days were required to unload it and get it to the place where it is requried. Not much progress could be made with pick and shovel. The concrete roadbed was damaged by the landslide, the roadbed in one place being divided along the middle and one section being shoved several inches to one side of the road. The exact extent of damage cannot be determined until the concrete is uncovered.

France Awaits German Action

Before Definitely Announcing Attitude Toward Dawes Plan—Appears Gratified.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, April 12.—Foreign office officials expressed gratification today over the unanimous acceptance of the Dawes plan by the interallied reparations commission. They warned, however, that acceptance by the Allies is provisional upon acceptance of the plan by Germany. France will take no definite action until Berlin speaks.

"Pertinax," political editor of the Echo De Paris and authority upon international affairs, declared in an article today that the reparations commission had accepted the Dawes report in principle only. He said the right to amend the report was not forfeited by allied powers.

According to "Pertinax," Louis Barthou, head of the reparations commission, made the reservation that a plan should be completed for definite control of German affairs and for definite sanctions (penalties) if Germany should fail to live up to the agreements.

The German representatives who came here for a hearing on the plan by the reparations commission next Thursday will probably bring many protests with them. It is a striking coincidence that one complaint by both France and Germany is similar; that is the failure of the Dawes committee to fix definitely the total Germany should pay.

First Course In Matrimony

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 12.—Do men marry for love whereas women make a business of it.

Twenty-five signed for the course last night, and showered the Rev. Dr. Harry L. Everett, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Jersey City, with questions at the conclusion of his inaugural address.

Among the queries shot at Dr. Everett were:

"How do you know if you're in love?"

"What's the best age at which a man should marry?"

"What is love?"

The answers are promised during the first lecture next Monday night.

BROOKHART PLANS CONTEMPT MOVE

To Get M. S. Daugherty In Custody And Make Him Produce Bank Records; Wheeler Goes to Chicago on New Mission.

THERE WERE BIG DEPOSITS

Former Attorney General At One Time Had $75,000 in Brother's Bank.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Columbus, Ohio, April 12.—After a dash into Ohio in an unsuccessful effort to examine the records of the Midland National Bank at Washington Courthouse, Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, chairman of the Daugherty investigating committee, was returning to Washington, D. C., today to start contempt proceedings in the senate against M. S. Daugherty, president of the bank and brother of former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty.

"Our committee will take every step possible to obtain the books of the Midland Bank," Brookhart told International News Service. "We will ask the senate to order Daugherty into the custody of the sergeant at arms. We are determined to get those books if we have to use every power at the disposal of the government, because we believe we have found the right road to the disclosure of official corruption. The evidence gathered at Washington Courthouse in a single day was nothing short of amazing."

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, the committee's prosecutor, did not return with Brookhart, but went to Chicago on a mission believed to be concerned with the investigation of the department of justice.

The happenings in Washington Courthouse verged on the sensational, featured by the flat refusal of Mel Daugherty to permit the senatorial investigators to examine his bank records and his retaliatory injunction in a state court barring Wheeler and Brookhart from going through the records. From John Phelton, a bank examiner, the committee learned that former Attorney General Daugherty and the late Jesse Smith were both large depositors in the Midland Bank, the Daugherty account at one time totalling $75,000. There also was mysterious evidence linking the former attorney general with the New York state license commission in connection with bank deposits.

PELICAN AND STARLING

A Starling stood outside a yard at the zoo and looked at the Pelican within.

"Hello," squeaked the Starling.

The Pelican opened his mouth and said:

"There are a great many of you about, I notice."

"Oh dear," the Starling said, "we are always hearing that. You see we came from the other side of the ocean.

"That is, our grandmothers and grandfathers did. And now people are always saying:

"'Gracious, there seem to be more starlings about all the time. They simply seem to be running the country.'

"And we get tired of hearing that. We're here and we like it and we intend to remain.

'Of course, we do move in large family groups. We have so many cousins and aunts and uncles and sisters and brothers.

"There are certainly plenty of us. But when the old people came over—they were young when they came over—they sent back word that it was nice here.

"And they said:

"'You'd better come, plenty of you!'

"So we came—oh yes, we all said:

"'It sounds like a nice country. Let's see how we like it.'

"And we made ourselves at home right away. We thought it would be a nice country in which to bring up our children and have them educated and in turn bring up children of their own and have them educated in the cities, in the country places—all over.

"It is true some people don't like us because we like fruit—nice little bits of fruit we love. And somehow they don't like to share this fruit with us.

"So many of them talk about us. They say that even though our coloring is handsome and even though we're quite striking looking—especially when the sun shines down upon us and brings out the colors in our feathers—that we're full of badness.

"They say that because of the way we eat fruit.

"Yet, I think they would also say that we do a great deal of good in eating harmful insects. They wouldn't want to eat the insects and we do it for them.

"Very obliging of us."

"But you do like the insects and they don't," the Pelican said with a funny grin.

"Let us have our noble feelings," said the Starling.

"Oh, all right," said the Pelican. "I don't mind if you have noble feelings.

"I've been trying to do away with that old story that has gone the rounds about us.

"They say that the mother pelican will kill her young (without meaning to, of course,) by stroking him affectionately with her great beak. Then the story has it that the father pelican will come to the nest and bring the baby back to life by giving it some of his own life's blood which he gets by plucking at his breast."

"That's a grand story," said the Starling. "Isn't it true?"

"No indeed," said the Pelican. "Sometimes we get in a position which may look that way because we're cleaning ourselves so carefully and plucking away at the dust and dirt which gets into our feathers.

"But that story isn't true at all. I don't know how people can believe it!"

"Well," said the Starling, "people haven't always as good sense as they should have."

"True," said the Pelican, "very true."

We ought not to get books too cheaply. No book, I believe, is ever worth half so much to its reader as one that has been coveted for a year, and bought out of saved half-pence, and perhaps a day or two's fasting. That's the way to get at the cream of a book.—Ruskin.

GOOD THINGS

If one likes oysters here is a dish which is a whole meal in itself: Take one pint of tomatoes, one pint of oysters, two cupfuls of diced potatoes, one pint of milk, two teaspoonfuls of pepper, one tablespoonful of butter, one cupful of bread cubes and two cupfuls of oyster liquor. Combine the tomatoes, potatoes, and oyster liquid; cover with boiling water and cook until tender; add the oysters, milk, butter and seasonings and just bring to the boiling point. Season and when ready to serve, add the toasted bread cubes.

Marshmallow Frosting.—Put the unbeaten white of an egg, seven-eighths of a cupful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of water in the double boiler. Have the water underneath rapidly boiling and with a Dover egg beater begin to beat; after seven minutes add twelve marshmallows, remove from the heat and beat until the mixture is smooth and cool enough to hold its shape.

Italian Round Steak.—Put two pounds of round steak and two ounces of beef suet through a meat chopper; add one-fourth of a cupful of bread crumbs, a teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper, one tablespoonful of grated onion, two well-beaten eggs; mix well and form into balls the size of an egg. Simmer together one can of tomatoes, one cupful of water, one onion, one clove of garlic, one green pepper sliced fine, two cloves, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of salt and a small pinch of bay leaf. After one hour press through a sieve. Reheat in a shallow dish; when hot place the meat balls in the mixture, cover and simmer one hour. Have ready two-thirds of a package of elbow macaroni cooked until tender in salted water. Lift the meat balls from the dish to the center of a hot platter, surround the meat with the macaroni, pour over the sauce, sprinkle with cheese. Garnish with rings of green peppers.

UNIVERSAL CONSCRIPTION

The more the subject is discussed the more popular has become the Harding suggestion that in time of war the government should adopt a universal conscription policy. At first glance various interests that would be affected thereby object to the proposal. But the more it is studied the more it appears to be the only just plan as between man and man and as between individuals who sell their services and individuals who sell the use of their capital.

Recently a labor union organization expressed its disapproval of the proposed conscription measure because it contemplates paying labor soldier rates, that is, a wage of $30 a month, a place to live, food and other necessaries of life for himself and dependents. This was deemed unfair to the laboring man.

Criticism of the measure from this viewpoint wholly ignores the viewpoint of the man who goes into the trenches. The man who is conscripted for service on the battle front receives $30 per month and subsistence. He is not only required to perform far more arduous labors but must endure the dangers to life and limb and the hardships of exposure to all sorts of weather and ofttimes prolonged hunger. The man who serves in the military branch of the government has no choice in the matter. He goes where he is told, when he is told and performs the duties assigned him without question, under penalty of death for treason in case of refusal.

It would seem that if one man can be compelled to perform such services as that for $30 per month and subsistence, no other citizen could reasonably refuse to perform other necessary services amid the comforts and the safety of domestic activities for a similar compensation. The man who would refuse should be given the alternative of going to the front and standing shoulder to shoulder with the man on the firing line.

But it was not the Harding proposal that there should be conscription of personal services only. President Harding declared himself in favor of the conscription of all services, all industries and all capital. The Harding plan would conscript capital so that in time of war no exorbitant rates of interest could be charged and, therefore, no inflation of values could take place. Since wages could not be inflated, as they were during the world war, there would be no inflation of costs of production, no increase in the cost of living, no reason for increase in compensation in any line of industry, and no profit for everybody, which to act as an incentive to war.

The development of Alaska, a subject uppermost in the mind of President Harding when he died, proceeds without interruption. An air mail route from the southern coast into the interior is being plotted that will reduce to hours a journey that formerly took as many days. A party is now in the northern part of Alaska ready to start a summer's exploration of that little known section, and determine the oil and other resources that it contains. Bookings for summer tourists travel on the Alaska railroad exceed all previous records.

Former Ambassador Davis refuses to desert his lucrative law practice to become a Democratic presidential candidate. Therein he is wise. The grind of a summer's campaign would reach its climax in a disheartening defeat in November. Mr. Davis would return home tired and disappointed, to find that his clients had been taken over by others, and faced with the necessity of building his business anew. Mr. Davis represents the best type of candidate the Democrats could nominate, but the party must offer better inducements than it commands at present before it can prevail upon men of that caliber to become its leaders.

Nearly $4,000,000,000 has been invested in the Central and South American countries by American citizens, according to the Department of Commerce, which states that the great interest in Latin America is largely a growth of the past ten years. Prior to 1904 Latin America was almost an unknown land to many Americans. Today manufacturers and merchants, bankers and investors, ship owners and operators, travellers, educators and students, are all looking for information on Latin American affairs. And it is a much healthier brand of information than is to be found in Europe where propaganda and jealousies are rife.

THE IRREGULAR HEART

Many mothers who own clinical thermometers have also learned to take the pulse of their children.

I often think that this is almost as big a mistake as using the thermometer so often.

Why?

Well the mother feels that the child's pulse should be just as regular as the clock, and if it doesn't happen to be just that regular, she becomes alarmed.

When she feels the pulse she sometimes notices that the heart seems to be beating very hard and very fast for a few beats, and then seems to become slower and weaker for the next few beats.

That means irregularity to her and irregularity means something seriously wrong with the heart.

Now as a matter of fact, this seeming irregularity in young people is of no real danger.

As suggested in a previous article, if the child holds the breath for a few minutes the irregularity disappears.

A little exercise of any kind will likewise cause the heart to become regular.

In grown people there is also a form of irregularity that is a source of worry. You are feeling your pulse and you find that there are two rapid beats and then a long pause before the heart beats again. It is the long pause that upsets you. You feel that perhaps your heart will never beat again.

Now while one can't be too dogmatic in a case of this kind, if your heart is beating anywhere between 70 and 90, there is likely nothing wrong with you. To make sure of it, simply run slowly around the room a couple of times and then try your pulse.

It will be going a bit faster, but your pauses those dreadful pauses have disappeared, and your heart is as regular as a clock.

It is unfortunate that in the earlier days of heart inspection, any irregularity or any murmur, was always the cause of the rejection of an applicant for insurance.

And the hard thing about it was that if one were turned down by one company, it was difficult to get the same type of insurance from the other company.

However, where the heart is very fast and is irregular also, in a grown person it would be wise to consult your physician as there is a possibility of trouble in these very fast hearts.

But before consulting him just try the same thing as suggested before. That is simply run around your room slowly three or four times, and see what happens.

If the irregularity is still noticeable, in fact even more pronounced then see your physician about it.

It is very likely however that if you have any real trouble you will have other signs than that of the pulse.

You will find yourself getting out of breath very easily, and the feet will swell slightly.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS

At the Opera House is Shirley Mason in the Fox film "Love Letters." There are five widely varied acts of vaudeville.

The Keeney Theater offers "On the Banks of the Wabash," a screen conception of the theme which Paul Dresser took for his song that made such a wide appeal.

At the Auditorium today "The Night Message" with Gladys Hulette and Howard Truesdale. It is a melodrama vivid thrilling melodrama but so naturally acted so logically told, that it seems nothing but life itself.

Today concludes the presentation of vaudeville show at the Orpheum Theater with a new picture William Farnum in "The Gunfighter." Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday two big features will be the attraction—William S. Hart in his latest Paramount picture "Singer Jim McKee" now playing at the Rialto New York city and Harold Lloyd in "Safety Last" bigger and better than "Why Worry."

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

April 12, 1904—Five cases of typhoid fever reported in one house on Jartold street.

April 12, 1914—Dean Rummel announced to his congregation at St. Peter's Church that he would shortly visit the Holy Land and before returning would go to Rome.

William Swart and Miss Mae Volk married.

William Baker and Miss Myrtle Elwyn married.

James J. Brennan died on Brewster street.

Old Superstitions

Two very old stage superstitions are never to quote "Macbeth" and never to wear real flowers on the stage. This is seldom done, even now. There may be a good reason for this superstition, because if the petals should drop they might cause players to slip on the stage.

FARM POULTRY

POULTRY LIKE MASH AS ALL-YEAR FEED

"People who make money with chickens, feed mash the year around," declares James G. Halpin, poultryman at the University of Wisconsin.

"Don't think that the mash is not necessary," says Mr. Halpin, "just because the hens went into winter quarters and you have plenty of corn and small grain to feed.

"Hens are particular and they won't lay unless they are given the right kind of feed. The average farm does not produce all of the feeds that are needed by the laying flock and it is very poor management to get along with what feed you have when by buying a few pounds the profits of your flock can be greatly increased."

He regards the mash as essential for he says "Biddy not only likes it, but it furnishes the necessary protein. In the mash should be included some of the common by-products such as wheat bran, middlings, and gluten feed. It is an excellent way to feed animal protein for skim milk, buttermilk, or some form of waste can be mixed with the mash.

"In some sections many farmers feed their flocks fresh meat during the winter with excellent results. This meat consists of various animals, such as rabbits, muskrats (caught for their fur), calves not good enough to raise, worn out horses or a farm animal that has been accidentally killed, badly injured or that has died from some non-communicable disease.

"In feeding such material care should be taken that the meat does not spoil," declares Halpin. "The best practice is to dress the animal just as though it were to be used for food, and if the animal is large, quarter it and hang it up in a shed where the meat will freeze solid and stay frozen until used. The best way to feed such material is to cut off a piece and run it through a bone grinder. This can then be fed with the mash.

"When fresh meat is not available, some meat scrap or tankage should be purchased in its place. Hens will not drink enough milk in cold weather to give the most profitable production."

Light and Ventilation Plan an Important Part

Plenty of light and ventilation in the poultry house will help to keep the flock healthy and the house clean and sanitary. The general appearance of the interior of a poultry house should be bright, light, and cheerful. Keeping the walls and ceiling sprayed with whitewash will produce this effect. When there are enough windows, the interior of the house will be sufficiently lighted even on sunless days.

Sunlight is the best known germ destroyer, therefore all openings should be so located that the sun will strike every part of the poultry house at some time during the day. During the wintertime windows play an important part in keeping the birds active.

Both dampness and impure air are the result of poor ventilation. A damp house is one of the surest ways to cut down egg production and cause colds, roup and kindred ills. A curtain of unbleached muslin will allow fresh air to pass into the house and allow bad air to pass out and it will also prevent drafts. These curtains should be used only in severely cold weather and should always be open during the day, except when it is necessary to close them to keep out storms or heavy fogs.

One square foot of curtain to six square feet of floor space is a safe rule to follow. All openings should be far enough above the floor so that there will be no drafts directly upon the birds.

Early Maturing Pullet the One to Breed From

The pullet that takes eight months or more to mature is not as a rule a paying proposition. It not only costs more to keep her until she lays but the very weakness which made a late maturer of her prevents her from making a good record the rest of the year. In addition she misses the period of high-priced eggs. There are too many late developing pullets.

Early and late maturity are inherited. Don't breed from a late developer. Put a leg band on every bird that has begun laying to date. Then next September pull the bands from those that have moulted or which show very little egg capacity in the rear. These two trips to the hen house will save you a lot of trouble and guessing when you want to pick your breeders next year and will pay in the improvement of your stock.—O. C. Krum, Poultry Specialist, Colorado Agricultural College.

Fertility of White Eggs Greater Than Brown Ones

The result of tests show that white and brown eggs need the same temperature for incubation, as one is no warmer than the other, but brown eggs have a tendency to poorer fertility, more dead germs, more chicks dead in the shell, and produce fewer chicks than white eggs. Under ordinary conditions it is reasonable to expect white eggs to be 90 per cent to 92 per cent fertile and hatch 75 per cent of the fertile eggs.

More Changes On Broadway

Byrne Bros. to Occupy Ground Floor of Measter Building as Offices and Show Room.

The three story brick building known as the Measter Building, which was purchased by the Byrne Bros. early in 1923 has been renovated from top to bottom. The two upper floors are occupied by the Masonic Club of Kingston and the ground floor which has been occupied for a number of years by the late Ettinge Longyear and later by Raymond Conway and Co. as a plumbing shop, has been remodeled and fitted up for an office, and a display room for monuments. When completed it will be one of the most modern stores of its kind in many miles. It will aid the pubilc in making selections in stormy weather as well as in fine weather, and also evenings as it is well lighted with electric lights. The Byrne Bros. located at the corner of Broadway and Henry street in 1900, renting the then vacant lot from the late James E. Minnie and Alonzo Winne. They later purchased the property from Winnes and the lot adjoining on Broadway from the late John J. Moran and recently the Measter property, which completes the entire frontage on Broadway, between Henry and Van Duesen streets. This firm employs a number of skilled mechanics, has a well equipped plant with modern machinery and facilities for handling heavy pieces of granite.

PRINTS THAT THAVE A RECOGNIZED STANDING

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Although there has been much adverse criticism concerning prints it is significant that one of the last minute impressions of the Southern season was that women of standing in the fashion world were choosing printed fabrics for summer gowns.

There is so much individuality about a well chosen printed frock, that it is not surprising to find them selected by women of discrimination. A season in which all the world is wearing figured materials is apt to be trying to one's optic nerves but an occasional print leavens the entire lump of dull plain stuffs.

A heavy quality crepe in which rich colorings, sashed and bound with its basic color needs no apology if made according to the lines of the model sketched. The idea of contrasting sashes is of course familiar and was repeated during the winter on many all white evening gowns, color being added by a huge chou or bow of tulle or chiffon. In this instance the sash is plain and beautifully simple in treatment. The part encircling the waist is not plain but of the material of which the frock is made, an artful touch since most of us know to our sorrow the effect of cutting the body in twain by a well defined line.

Printed scarfs are another clever way of relieving the monotony of plain costumes and striped flannels and silks are now established as a summer mode. Curiously enough the much heralded plaid is far behind in the race.

If there is any choice in the matter of design it appears to be for the smaller Persian and eastern designs. Many prints are frankly Oriental and mothers have all the charm of coloring peculiar to an old tapestry. The average print has something red in its design which of course dominates the other tones and gives further emphasis to red this season. Not that it is needed

Rarely does red appear for so many purposes as at the moment. Even in congested communities one finds brilliant red dresses worn. A smart one of turkey red flannel made on coat dress lines was trimmed with rows of wide black cire braid the turnover collar and reverse having braid which also appears on the skirt. Red overblouses or blouses which have much of this warmth in their figuring are also worn while red hats have cropped up like the crocuses and daffodils.

Build Yourself Up To What You Ought To Weigh

BURKE'S COD LIVER OIL Combined with IRON in Pleasant Tablet Form—Will Start Improvement in 5 Days

It's a sure sign you are sick and run-down and need building up if you are falling off in weight, or if you don't weigh as much as you ought to. Weight is the most important single factor by which to judge your physical condition.

It is easy to find out and you owe it to yourself to make this test today. Figure that a person 5 feet in height ought to weigh 119 pounds. For every inch you are over 5 feet in height add 5½ pounds. Thus, if you are 5 feet 6 inches in height, your normal weight should be 119 pounds plus 6 times 5½ which is 143 pounds.

Not more than two persons out of ten can meet this test and that's why so many are pale, sickly and feel tired out all the time. Put on a pound a week and gain strength and red blood continuously by taking BURKE'S COD LIVER OIL and IRON in pleasant tablet form.

You can procure this latest scientific tonic and weight builder from any reliable druggist. A full 15 day treatment is guaranteed to give satisfactory results or the purchase price will be refunded.

BOURBONISM AS A CAUSE OF STRIFE

BY EVANS WOOLLEN,
President, Trust Company Division, American Bankers Association.

The continuance of property-right and the existence of efficient government in this land of universal suffrage depend upon the dominance of sound public opinion. More than anything else we need understanding. We need understanding between those who have and those who have not, between "the better off" and the "worse off"; understanding between those who employ and those who are employed. Understanding between all these is possible but understanding is impossible between the Bourbon and the radical. Accordingly, a contribution on our side to understanding is the avoidance of Bourbonism.

Evans Woollen

Some of us may well re-examine our conception of property rights. If those who own property and those who are charged with its conservation recognize this fact: That property-right is best defended, not on grounds of tradition, but on grounds of usefulness, there is a chance, through open-minded discussion for understanding between them and those who vote. On the other hand with the Bourbon who holds that property right, unchangeable in all its aspects, is not discussable in any aspect there is no chance for understanding. There is chance for clash. He promotes the class consciousness that is his danger and the danger of those whose business it is to conserve property into the future.

Is it possible, in the second place, that some of us may well re-examine our conception of free speech? Thus also we may help, each his mite, to avoid misunderstanding between Bourbon and radical. Some of us would find ourselves assuming free speech as the right of those who accept the political and social institutions in which we believe. Whereas the fact is, of course, that free speech, short of incitement to law-breaking, is the right of all of us. It is the right of the communist and the socialist as much as it is the right of you and me. If we who believe in our political and social institutions recognize this fact: That free speech, short always of incitement to law-breaking, is the right of those whose ideas we dislike not less than of those whose ideas we like, we promote understanding.

Indeed, let us go farther and say that we had better abate somewhat of our zeal for repressive legislation. Government by jailing can put out the communist and the socialist, but cannot put down communism or socialism. That is the task of those who think straight and discuss generously-mindedly.

JUDGE CLEARWATER DELEGATE TO PHILADELPHIA CONFERENCE

Nation-Wide Effort to Speed up Administration of Justice.

Colonel, the Honorable William N. The object of this conference is to consider and formulate a national movement for the elimination of delays in the administration of justice, a subject to which Judge Clearwater has devoted himself for substantially forty years, one of his achievements being the adoption by the legislature of this state of the Civil Practice Act, which has abolished many of the technicalities which for years not only delayed but defeated justice in this state.

With well over three hundred Rebekahs, Odd Fellows, and friends present, an evening of exquisite enjoyment was well spent, after which all repaired to the dining hall where a bountiful dinner was partaken of by everyone. The menu was as follows:

Baked Beans Potato Salad

Sliced Roast Pork
Jelly
Layer Cake Finger Rolls
Pickles Cheese Conserve
Coffee, Etc.

The "Sky Fugal Ordeal," a sketch which was given as part of the entertainment during the evening was presented and much credit was given the characters. The play was given a hearty vote of applause from beginning to end. Card games and dancing were indulged in throughout the evening. Some novelty songs by a selected sextet were a feature of the evening. An excellent speech was made in relation to the anniversaries, and also a story was given by Brother J. W. Frankel, which received hearty applause. Joseph M. Robinson also made a few remarks which were greatly appreciated. The cast of characters is as follows:

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

SYBELLA.

Sybella was the wife of Robert of Normandy, son of William the Conqueror, and lived in the twelfth century. Robert of Normandy was wounded by a poisoned arrow, and while he slept his wife, Sybella, applied her lips to the wound and drew forth the venom, which very soon caused her death.

"CHRISTADELPHIANS."

The first church of the above sect was organized in Brooklyn, N. Y., in the middle of the last century by Dr. John Thomas, its founder, who was born in London 119 years ago today, April 12, 1805, coming to America 1850, settling in Brooklyn. The sect claims to represent the true faith and practice of apostolic times. They believe that God will raise all who love Him to eternal life in this world, but that those who do not shall perish absolutely in death. They expect the return of Christ to earth to reign on the throne of David over the converted twelve tribes of Israel.

DOOM OF SENECA.

It was on the 12th of April in the year A. D. 65, that Lucius Seneca, one of Rome's greatest philosophers, received from the tyrant Nero, his former pupil, the imperial mandate to take leave of life. Seneca had lived for the most part, like a philosopher, and he died like one. In the presence of his wife and friends he opened veins in his legs, but the blood did not flow freely and he took a draught of poison to hasten the end. This, too, proved too slow to suit him so he entered a warm bath and was finally suffocated in a stove. Nero destroyed the man but, happily, his works have survived, and the scholarly has ever since delighted in that eclectic philosophy which was a fusion of all the existing systems of thought.

Describes Life and Habits of Jicarilla Apaches.

Washington.—R. Mildred Lang, secretary Young Women's Missionary societies and League for Service, in a report of Indian activities says that the twelfth birthday of a Jicarilla Apache Indian maiden marks the turning point in her life. She pulls out her eyebrows, which is a sign that her girlhood is over and that she is ready for matrimony. Her parents give her a coming-out dance, which lasts for several days, and she often meets her future husband for the first time. She enjoys great freedom before coming of age, but thereafter she must accept her parents' choice. She may postpone the wedding date, but she generally has to give in. Continuing, the report says:

"Many of the Indian parents have very low moral standards and are ignorant of the sanctity of marriage, so it is with joy that missionaries bring Christian principles of living into the lives of the Indian maidens with whom they come into contact in the schools and on their field trips. One girl postponed her coming-out dance for two years, and when she was seventeen her parents tried to force her to consent to having it held. The girl ran away from home and came to the mission school. Now she works half of each day and is trying to live a Christian life."

In telling of the life of the Indian children, the report says that they are ingenious in their playtime. The girls make whole families of rag dolls, and they use their handkerchiefs to make camps or tepees for their dolls to live in. The boys whittle out wooden guns, which are sometimes mistaken for real weapons.

The Indians are a very superstitious race, according to the report. The house and belongings of every Indian who dies are burned so that the spirit of the dead will not be able to find the relatives and haunt them. The Indians have such a fear of death that they often leave their sick and go off to order the wooden box before the person is dead.

"They have great faith in the cures of the medicine man," continues the report. "When a baby has convulsions the medicine man will take the child by its feet and jounce it up and down, chanting all the while. Our minister's wife came into a hut one day just in time to save the life of one baby. If a man has a pain in his chest one cure is to slash the chest with glass and let the pain out. The government physicians for each tribe and the preventive measures practiced in our mission stations do a great deal for the health of the tribes."

Adopted by King's Spirit, Changes Name to Rameses

Colorado Springs, Colo.—So far as this life is concerned, Patrick Francis Butler, printer, now is Patrick Francis Rameses. Judge Cornforth has granted his petition for the change in name.

"Your honor, I am a spiritualist and through spirit communication I have been adopted into the family of King Rameses II," Butler told the court. "I wish to complete this spiritual adoption by changing my name. This change will not be detrimental to the interests of any person and it is a proper change."

Rameses says he was adopted in spirit about four months ago. He contends that he is related to 13 monarchs who ruled from 1500 to 1000 B. C. He is a graduate of the University of Dublin, Ireland, and was a member of the Roman Catholic church. He plans to visit Egypt.

Gold Star Twice Stolen From Tablet to War Hero

Woodbury Heights, N. J.—The borough council here has offered a reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of the person who has twice removed a gold star from in front of the name of the borough's only soldier who lost his life while serving in the World war. The borough placed a bronze tablet on a huge bowlder in the center of the town containing the names of all its representatives in that conflict.

Last July it was noticed that the lone gold star on the tablet had been plucked out, and interested citizens had another star placed thereon. A few weeks ago this second star was found to be missing, and a quiet investigation was made. The borough finally decided that the matter should be given publicity and offered the reward.

Gold Dredge Sold for Taxes

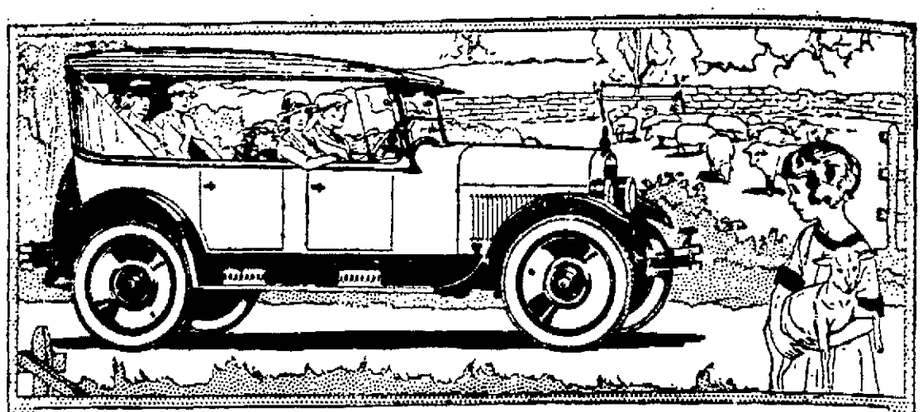

Baker, Ore.—The gold mining dredge of the Sumpter Gold Dredge company, which was used for several years in the Sumpter district, was sold recently for taxes delinquent during 1920, 1921 and 1922 upon the order of Gustav Anderson, circuit judge of the eighth Oregon district. By special arrangement, the Eastern Oregon Light & Power company was allowed to buy the dredge by paying $10,362 in cash, the amount due.

Paroled to Pay Victims

Los Angeles.—"I will work a year for nothing for each of the persons I wronged," said Anita Tell to Judge Hahn in asking for probation on a charge of grand larceny. She was granted probation for three years, with instructions to repay persons she admitted having robbed.

When a fool hen takes a notion to set she doesn't care whether there are any eggs in the nest or not, and some men are built on the same plan.

Another Myth Exploded

The number of times a drowning person comes to the surface depends upon his strength or whether the water is salt or fresh, running or quiet.

LIGHTING THE LIVING ROOM

THE MOST USED ROOM IN THE HOUSE SHOULD BE WELL AND CAREFULLY ILLUMINATED.

Activities in a living-room vary from those quiet occasions when a mere mood is desired to those times a joyous company is gathered. Rarely the same lighting effect is at once desirable for these two extremes. To provide only the monotonous lighting which is the result of simple ceiling-fixtures and generally inadequate equipment, is to limit the possibilities of lighting and to insure dissatisfaction. It should be the aim in designing the wiring and in selecting the fixtures to obtain a variety of lighting effects, in order that lighting may do its share toward providing the proper environment for various moods and occasions. In fact, after a home is decorated and furnished, lighting is the only element having sufficient mobility to provide extensive variety in the appearance of the interior.

Ceiling Fixture for General Lighting.

The function of the ceiling-fixture in the living-room is to provide general lighting. The fixture should be inconspicuous and hung close to the ceiling so that it will be out of the field of vision. A bright glaring spot viewed continuously is extremely uncomfortable. To remedy this discomfort the fixture should be equipped with diffusing shades of such shape that the light-sources are concealed. There are occasions when general lighting is desired, but to sit for hours each evening under a flood of light cannot be enjoyable. Such lighting does not supply the pleasure of subdued and localized light so desirable for reading and resting. Therefore, ceiling-fixtures should be limited to providing general lighting and portable lamps should be available for the quiet hours in the living-room.

Side Wall Lights Need Careful Shading.

Owing to their position, wall-brackets are a source of discomfort if they are not heavily shaded. If they are depended upon for general lighting, they are often bright enough to be annoying. A decorative lighting-unit which is intended to be only ornamental has as much right to exist as any piece of bric-a-brac or pottery. Dense diffusing glass, parchment and textiles are satisfactory materials for shading these units and low wattage lamps should be used in them.

Portable Lamps Provide Best Lighting.

Portable lamps represent the best system of lighting available for the living-room. With an adequate supply of portable lamps the householder will be able to obtain a range of lighting effects and the various occupants of the room will be able to find comfortable places for reading or for other activities. In fact, portables may supply all the lighting requirements in a living-room, but considerable care should be exercised in selecting them for various purposes. The pedestal should be of the correct height and the shade should be of proper width and depth so that the spread of light may be correct for its intended purpose. These things may be determined before purchasing a portable by experimenting in the store.

If the ceiling-fixture is eliminated, other means should be provided for obtaining a flood of light when desired. This general lighting can be effectively produced by portable lamps which are equipped with an inverted reflector and an open-top shade. This reflector will throw the light to the ceiling and a lighting effect similar to the one produced by an indirect ceiling-fixture will be obtained.

Summing Up.

In an average, sized living-room one floor lamp, about six feet high, equipped with a reflector and an open top shade, will provide plenty of light for general illumination. The downward light will give illumination for reading or for lighting the keyboard of the piano. Near another chair or a davenport, a bridge-lamp or, if end-tables are used, a table-lamp will provide light for another's activities. Various other floor and table-lamps may be used, depending upon the kind and arrangement of furniture. Portable lamps provide light where and when one wishes it. If there is a fireplace in the room two little candlesticks equipped with small lamps and dense shades on the mantel will add a bit of interesting ornamentation to the room. A charming, restful, inviting atmosphere is created in a room in which the lighting is accomplished by appropriate portable lamps, but to insure against dinginess some of the shades of portables should have open tops in order that some light may escape upward to be diffused about the room.

GOOD NEWS TRAVELS NOT ONLY FAST BUT FAR

Teachers as Well as Housekeepers are Eager To Learn More About Budgeting.

From Washington, D. C., comes a request for "The Budget Book of Household Accounts" which Practical Housekeeping offered to its readers in a recent issue. The lady making the request is a teacher of Domestic Art in one of the Washington schools and a former resident of Dutchess county.

Women are realizing more and more that budgeting the income, be it large or small, is the only way of giving every department of the household a square deal. So much for necessaries, so much for education and development, so much for pleasure—but how much for each?

Write to the Kingston Gas & Electric Co. for information on this subject and enclose 15 cents in stamps or currency for a budget book.

Mohamet Could Call Up The Mountain Now.

News to the outside world of each incident of discovery as the exploration of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb progresses will be expedited since the establishment of telephone communication with the Western side of the Nile river in the vicinity of Thebes. A traveller recently returned from the vicinity of Mecca, reports the telephone has reached even that remote citadel of the Moslem faith.

Getting Breakfast At The Table

Preparing The First Meal of the Day No Longer A Dreaded Task.

Probably every woman at some time has felt that cooking and serving breakfast would be robbed of much of its general uncongeniality if she could find time to sit at the table and eat with her family. This is true. There is nothing "homey" about a meal during which the lady of the house spends most of her time running back and forth from kitchen to dining-room. But there was little else to do before the coming of electric cookery and particularly the use of small table appliances.

Today all this can be easily done away with in any home using electricity by merely having the table or dining-room wired with several convenience outlets. There should be at least three or four to facilitate the cooking of breakfast where anything more than toast and coffee is served.

The best way to do this is to have a center floor outlet to which can be connected the three or four outlets which are installed in the frame of the table directly under the top. It is best to have two outlets on each end of the table. This makes for better balance, as having all the appliances at one end would make the table crowded. This way the housewife may sit at the table and make coffee in the percolator, toast bread and boil, fry or scramble eggs at the same time.

The latest thing in electric wiring carries convenience to even a greater degree. A switch installed in the main bedroom controls the convenience outlets of the dining-room table or wall. By putting coffee and water in your percolator, and water for boiling eggs into the egg-boiler the night before all one has to do the next morning is to switch on the current in the bedroom, and the breakfast will start cooking even before you are dressed and ready to come to the dining-room.

It would seem that all these things have been designed especially to weaken the last vestige of argument cherished by those of us inclined to laziness, or shirking of duties supposed to be traditionally distasteful to us, such as getting up in the morning to cook breakfast for the man of the house, and send him off to the work-a-day world in good humor.

We do not speak from experience but we have heard it said, that in many cases this would be rather difficult to do. Husbands are so traditionally grouchy in the morning as women are supposed to be lazy about getting breakfast. It would seem simpler to get up and cook the breakfast, particularly if it can be done without effort at the table than listen to much unintelligible grumbling.

Smallest Pair of Scissors

A famous firm of Sheffield cutlery manufacturers has produced a perfect pair of scissors so small that they are easily contained in an ordinary thimble.

COFFEE, FLAKY RICE And Cream Combine in a Rich Filling for Pie.

Scald one cup of milk and one-half cup of strong coffee together with three-fourths of a cup of brown sugar and a few grains of salt.

Add one-half cup of cooked flaky rice and cook for a few minutes in a double boiler. Beat the yolks of two eggs and pour a part of the cream filling into them, mix thoroughly and return to the boiler.

Cook until thickened. Add a few drops of vanilla, and, when partly cooked pour into a baked pastry shell and cover with meringue made of the whites of two eggs beaten very stiff with the addition of a few grains of salt, two tablespoons of powdered sugar and a few drops of vanilla.

Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until browned. This will take about eight minutes.

The rice acts as a thickening as well as adding nutriment and flavor to the pie but can be omitted if desired. In this case three level tablespoons of flour would be used mixed with a small amount of milk and combined with the scalding coffee and milk mixture the same as any cream pie. If one desires a still richer filling cream can be used in place of milk with three eggs and only two tablespoons of flour.

"Little Levi" Goes To The Smithsonian.

"Little Levi," a complete model of the liner Leviathan, seized during the war at the New York offices of the Hamburg-American Line and later loaned to the United States Lines and the Shipping Board for exhibition purposes, has been turned over to the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D. C., by the Alien Property Custodian.

This model of the great ocean greyhound is a perfect miniature even down to the electric lighting system. A tiny bulb is to be found in the exact point where a full sized lamp is located on the big ship. By pressing a switch light blazes forth on decks and in salons and state rooms. The model is eighteen and a half feet long, twenty-three and a half inches on the beam and three feet ten inches from keel to the top of its funnels.

The Nineties, famous for the Spanish-American War, World's Fair, Gibson Girl and the beginning of golf in this country, also mark the beginning of electric truck transportation. The United States Express Co., back in 1898 introduced the electric truck for city transportation. The first truck averaged a speed of about 8 miles per hour and its mileage capacity was 30 miles on a single charge. The electrics in the service of the American Express Company, successors to the United States Express Co., today travel 15 miles an hour and average 45 to 50 miles on one charge of batteries, while a development enabling quick change of a discharged battery for a charged one, has made it possible for the electric truck to operate practically continuously.

VARY THE DAILY MENU FOR THE HEALTH AND PLEASURE OF ALL CONCERNED

THE BEST LIKED DISHES LOSE THEIR SAVOR IF SERVED TOO OFTEN.

Every housewife should study variety in catering to her family. This need not be an expensive business if she will be on the alert for novelties that are low in price and tasty in substance. A woman is an unusual housekeeper if she does not fall into the habit of serving the same dishes over and over to her family. Even though they seem satisfied with their fare, it is always a good thing for all concerned to offer them an occasional change. For instance, try stuffed calves' hearts. Here is an inexpensive dish which when cooked after the following recipe is truly delicious.

Stuffed Calves' Hearts.

Order these a day or so in advance, as in some markets they are not kept regularly on hand. Wash the hearts thoroughly and lay them for an hour in cold salted water. Dry them, run a long narrow-bladed knife through the center of each heart, thrusting it in at the top but not cutting through the bottom. Turn the knife a couple of times that sufficient space may be made for the forcemeat. Make this of a cupful of bread crumbs. Season with a quarter teaspoonful of onion juice, half a teaspoonful of mixed summer savory and sweet marjoram; a teaspoonful of salt and a pinch of black pepper. Obtain the onion juice by grating a peeled onion on a vegetable grater; the juice will trickle from the bottom of the grater. Moisten the stuffing with butter, or if you have good bacon or ham or beef dripping you may use this.

Pack the stuffing into the hearts and when they are well filled sew up the opening at the top with coarse white thread. Melt a tablespoonful of good dripping in a saucepan, fry brown in it a small sliced onion; roll the hearts in flour to which you have added a little salt and pepper, lay them in the dripping. Keep your heat high and cook until lightly browned, turning them once or twice. Pour over the hearts enough weak stock to cover them, put with them a couple of slices of carrot, a stalk of celery and a little parsley, fit a top on the saucepan, turn the heat low and simmer for two hours. At the end of the time take out the hearts, remove the strings and lay the meat in a hot dish. Thicken the gravy with a tablespoonful of browned flour wet to a paste with cold water, season with a teaspoonful of salt and as much kitchen bouquet turn the heat high, boil the sauce, stirring constantly until it thickens and pour it over the hearts. In serving them slice crosswise. These hearts are as good cold as hot.

Curried Vegetables.

Curried vegetables with rice are very good and may be the means of using up small quantities of left-over vegetables. To make the dish, melt four ounces of bacon fat, and in it fry until tender one chopped peeled apple, two tomatoes cut into small pieces, one-quarter of a pound of peeled mushroom caps cut into pieces, one cup of diced onion, two diced potatoes, one half cup of diced carrots and a cup of tiny flowerettes of cooked cauliflower. Add one scant tablespoon of curry powder, salt and paprika to taste and sufficient brown gravy to moisten. Cook in all over hot water for ten minutes and serve on steamed rice.

Hot Bean Cutlets.

Press cooked beans through a potato ricer and for each pint of pulp add one tablespoon of choped pimentos, salt to taste, three slices of bacon

New Standards of Lighting

Human eyes are the product of countless centuries of adaptation to daylight intensities. These intensities are more than a thousand times greater than the intensities of artificial lighting that are popularly, but erroneously, supposed to be sufficient.

The tendency for people to demand more and more light—in their homes, in the stores and on the streets, is proof that the generally accepted standards are too low. Fifty years ago air-tight bedrooms were the vogue, but they have given away before the knowledge of the value of fresh air and ventilation.

Proper and adequate lighting is just as essential to human progress as clean and sufficient air. That is why the old type of fixtures with their glare and eye strain and inadequate light are giving way to the modern fixtures with higher intensities, diffused lighting effects and harmonious color combinations.

Good light and plenty of it is the order of the day.

APRIL HEADACHES AND SPRING FEVER

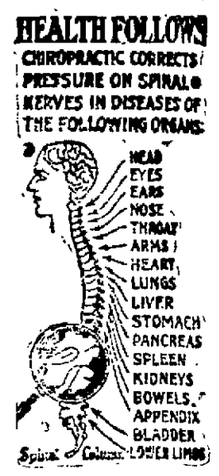

Weekly Health Talk
By Froude & Mac Kinnon, D's. C.

April headaches and spring fever are closely related. Usually when you get rid of one, you get rid of the other. There are various kinds of headaches, but the kind that goes along with spring fever (bodily lassitude) is caused by a subnormal liver. The wastes of the body are not removed rapidly enough.

The mental impulses, or life energy, that travel the nerve lines, flow equally to all parts of the body, the liver included, unless there is a displacement of spinal bones interfering with the nerves to the liver. By chiropractic spinal adjustments the chiropractor removes the cause of this interference and the full power and health energy of the liver is restored. Headaches and lassitude disappear.

RID OF HEADACHES

"My wife had sick headaches that kept her in bed for days at a time. We tried all manner of remedies but nothing gave any permanent benefit until my wife took a course of chiropractic spinal adjustments. Her general health was greatly improved and the headaches disappeared. I am glad at all times to recommend chiropractic."—Rev. J. H. Barnes, Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement No. 13144i.

INDIFFERENCE OF VOTERS CONDEMNED BY METHODISTS

At the Methodist conference which closed last week in New York city the lay representatives of the churches presided over by the ministers adopted at their annual session resolutions favoring America joining the International Court and also uniting in an association of the nations to preserve world peace.

The laymen also recorded their continued opposition to the illegal liquor traffic and their support of prohibition, and advocated the enactment by the state legislature of an adequate state prohibition enforcement law.

The resolutions, which were presented by the committee on the state of the church, of which Irving J. Rose and William F. Dedrick, of this city, were members, stated that one cause of political corruption is the indifference of the people to public affairs, and urged that Christian people take part in the primaries and see that only candidates of well known integrity are nominated for public office and only such elected on election day.

VACUUM SYSTEM NOT UNDERSTOOD

Internal Repairs to Various Parts Are Necessary for Best Results.

(ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

One of the modern and least understood parts of the car is the vacuum system. The average owner knows nothing about its interior or how it works.

The pipe running down the left of the tank goes direct to the intake manifold (when the vacuum tank is attached to the dash), the pipe to the right directly to the main tank. This draws the gasoline from the main tank, usually situated at the rear of the car, to the vacuum tank. The pipe at the bottom of the tank feeds the gasoline to the carburetor.

Repair Often Needed.

Internal repairs to the various parts of the vacuum tank are now often necessary. When the tank is suspected of causing any trouble, the fuel must be drawn from it. If more than one-sixth of a quart comes out, the tank is performing its functions properly.

If the engine is run at low speed with the throttle open for a long time, the vacuum may be reduced so fast that the tank will empty itself. This condition may be produced by foreign matter choking the feed tube, from the main to the vacuum tank. Running the engine with closed throttle for a few minutes will give suction enough to fill the tank.

In case the float valve sticks, causing an overflow of gasoline from the tank, the inner shell can be removed by taking out eight screws in the top. The tank may be filled with fuel and used as an ordinary gravity system, so that the driver can get to the nearest garage.

If the vacuum tank ever becomes empty it may be filled by closing the throttle and turning the engine over a few times. If the tank has been empty for some time and refuses to fill readily, there is probably some dirt or grit under the flapper valve. In this case squirt a little gasoline into the tank through the plug in its top, which is easily removed.

Flush Tank Often.

To save yourself possible trouble with the vacuum tank through neglect it is a good plan to remove the plug in the top and flush it out about once every three months, at the same time drawing off any sediment or water that may have collected at the bottom of the tank by opening the petcock at the bottom.

Even then the vacuum tank will sometimes fail to work properly, and if the tank should happen to refuse to function there is still a way to get gas, even though you cannot find the trouble. Remove the entire top of the vacuum tank, buy a can of gasoline and use it to fill the vacuum tank. Then run the car on this supply. When it is exhausted refill it again, and so on.

Repairs Responsible for Additions to Scrap Heap

Amateur tire patching ruins thousands of automobile tires each year. It is a common practice among automobile owners when receiving a cut or puncture in a tire to insert a patch on the inside of the casing at the point of injury, thinking that the damage is permanently repaired. Such a repair will in time ruin any tire, says one expert.

It is good practice to apply patches in such cases, but a tire sleeve should be placed on the outside of the tire opposite the patched portion at the same time. The sleeve serves to bind the tire, hold the torn and injured parts of the fabric in place and prevent further chafing and rupture.

The tire sleeve and patch are merely "first-aid" appliances, and should be removed at the earliest possible moment. It will pay motorists to drive to the nearest repair man immediately after the injury occurs. If allowed to run without repair, every time the wheel makes a revolution the tire quickens its pace toward a scrap heap.

Accidents Cost U. S. $2,250,000,000 a Year

Accidents cost Americans $2,250,000,000 a year.

Nine out of every ten could be prevented by carefulness.

More than 500,000 motor accidents occurred in 1923.

Every 108 minutes some one is killed in an auto smash-up.

Fifty-four auto smash-ups every hour in a 24-hour day.

Seventy-five per cent of them happen at a speed of under 15 miles.

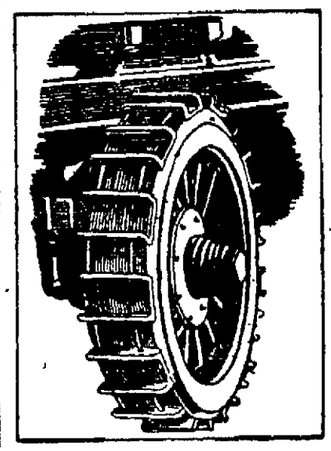

The average car running 15 miles and with brakes in perfect order cannot be stopped short of 20 feet.

Out of 10,550 deaths due to smash-ups in New York state 700 were due to reckless driving, 850 to defective mechanism, 9,000 to careless pedestrians.

Won't you be careful in driving your car? Let's give a thought to the careless pedestrians and children that meet death every year in accidents.

Grouters Assist Trucks in Soft or Muddy Field

Frequently a motor truck may be used in an emergency to do some sort of field work. One Oregon rancher, who had occasion to do some hauling from a soft field, equipped his rear wheels with removable "grouters" similar to those used on tractors, but made especially for the truck wheels. They consisted of pieces of angleiron, cut the correct length, and bolted together, so that when applied there was no slippage of the wheels inside the grouters. The accompanying sketch gives a good idea of the arrangement.

Greasing of Rear Axle Can Be Done Very Quick

Here is a method of putting lubricant into the rear axle in double quick time: Put a common funnel in the filler hole of the axle. Remove the cap and nozzle from the end of the grease gun, opening the whole front end of the gun. Put the end of the grease gun in the wide end of the funnel and hold it firmly while screwing up the handle in the ordinary way. The grease will shoot into the axle in jig time, and a rinsing with kerosene and wiping with a bit of waste will remove all traces of the operation from the funnel.

Automobile Notes

Loose battery terminals may be tightened by using a thin sheet of tinfoil.

One never appreciates how grand it is to drive slowly until one has hit it up once too often.

Brass polish should never be used on nickel trimmings, as abrasive particles in the polish scratch the plating.

No motor vehicle should be parked at the entrances to hotel, theaters, office buildings, large stores and other buildings to which there is a great amount of coming and going.

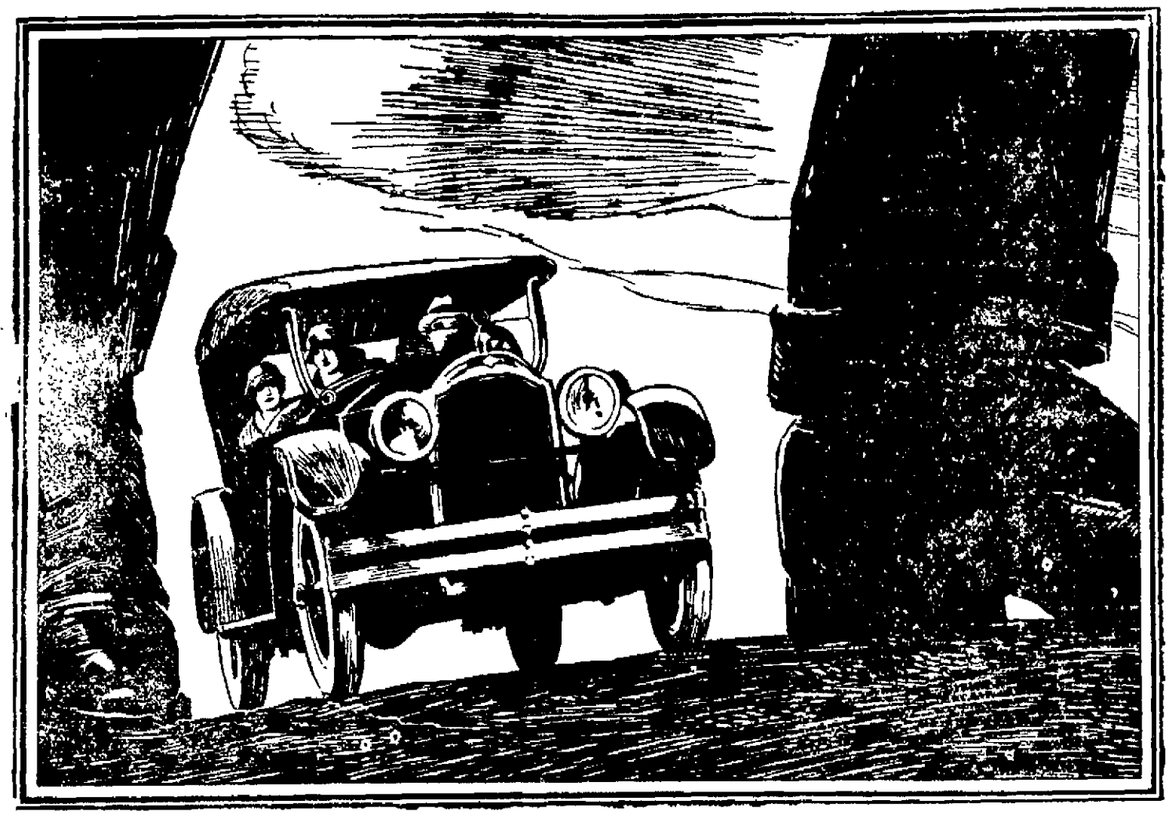

BATTLESHIP FUNNEL MAKES IDEAL GARAGE

W. B. Fortune of Philadelphia, Pa., while wandering about the navy yard here, trying to figure some way to build a garage for his two cars, spied a remembered funnel of the scrapped U. S. S. Maine, and a few minutes later he was at work on his new garage, which now holds his two cars comfortably.

NEW PAIGE

The Powerful Paige Walks Up-hill in High

Now Paige Performance is Yours for $1795

TRY this test with your car and know what it means. It is the great prover of power—slow climbing in high. Then try it with the New Paige—prove its superior power by its slower climbing. For further proof—press the accelerator and watch the New Paige gather speed on the climb.

Spirited Performance

The well-known, big 70 h.p. Paige motor is the motor of the New Paige. With added improvements for even greater performance, smoothness, silence. Here's power beyond all need. Such reserve power means a motor that's not overtaxed—hence long-lived. And the high-pressure oiling system keeps it smooth and quiet, postponing wear.

You've never known such handling ease as in the New Paige! With power so flexible that you can drive 2 miles an hour in high, gear changing is rare indeed. And then the silent, easy shift and smooth-acting Paige clutch remove all effort. In turning, or parking, or all-day driving, Paige steering ease knows no equal—thanks to ball-bearing steering spindles.

Paige rides as you have hoped your car would—insured by 11-foot wheelbase, 5-foot rear springs and snubbers, front and rear.

New Low Price

Consider all you get in Paige. Such performance; comfort; strongly built, well-finished bodies; prestige of ownership unmarred by cheaper, smaller cars of the same name. Then consider the new low price. Only last year the Paige sold at $2450. The New Paige Phaeton, improved throughout, sells for but $1795. The De Luxe model, completely equipped, at $1995.

The Reason

Such a low price is made possible only through greatly increased production,—an increase made possible by an enlarged plant with a capacity 300% greater than a year ago. The important savings through larger purchases and lowered overhead, amounting to hundreds of dollars, have been spent in bettering the car, —and lowering the price.

Let us demonstrate how the Paige walks up-hill in high. You drive if you like. Just telephone or call and we'll arrange an appointment at your convenience. (583-S)

East African Elephant Herds Growing Larger

The elephant is a very useful animal both for draft purposes and for ivory. A few years ago 70,000 were slaughtered annually for their tusks, so that it seemed as though there was a good chance of the big animal's becoming extinct. Wise laws, however, have checked the destruction so that the number is increasing. The war gave the elephants their chance and the British authorities in East Africa have also protected them. South of Zambesi the elephant is virtually extinct and the Cape market for ivory has ceased to exist.

At present Mozambique is the center of the ivory trade. Oddly enough, the Portuguese, through whose hands it comes, send nearly all the ivory across to Bombay, where it is sorted and cut and dispatched to the European markets. The world's supply of real elephant ivory is now about 250 tons a year.—Scientific American.

Travellers Dance.

Friday evening the members of the local U. C. T. and their guests, to the number of 75 couples, enjoyed the third of the series of invitation dances given at Pythian Hall. On account of the size of the hall the number invited, has to be limited and it was with regret that the committee in charge were compelled to disappoint many who would have liked to attend. There were practically no idle moments and Zucca's famous singing orchestra were obliged to encore every dance several times. At eleven o'clock refreshments of high order were served and dancing resumed until one o'clock. Flowers were furnished to each lady and the colors added to the gaiety of the occasion Owing to the many requests of those present the council will hold one more dance in May, when another enjoyable time may be expected.

Lowell Club Banquet.

On Friday evening, the Lowell Club members enjoyed their annual banquet at the parlors of the Albany Avenue Church at 7 o'clock. The tables were artistically decorated with ferns and yellow roses and sweet peas with yellow shaded candles. The doxology was sung before the guests sat down to a delicious turkey dinner served faultlessly by the ladies of one of the Circles of the church. Following the banquet there was a most enjoyable program. As a sort of roll call each Lowell Club member gave some anecdote thus adding the sauce of a hearty laugh to the delicious viands partaken of. Mrs. Hobson acted as toast mistress and the following toasts were given: "Cuba," an account of her recent trip by Mrs. Frank Powley; "Norway," as she saw it, by Mrs. Hale; "To the Officers and Program Committee," (in original verse), by Mrs. Basten; a reading, "The Erl King" by Mrs. Steiner; "All's Well That Ends Well," by Mrs. De la Plane. The toasts were interspersed by the singing of old time songs, and the delightful evening was brought to a close with the singing of Auld Lang Syne. Mrs. Van Buren accompanying the singing at the piano.

MANY QUEER FINDS IN ANCIENT HOUSES

Secrets of Centuries Disclosed When Demolished.

Houses are being pulled down all over the country, and only the men with the pickaxes know the strange things sometimes discovered in them.

Recently there was found in the walls of an old house in a midland county a hidden chamber containing many theological books, a rosary, and similar relics, the inference being that it was what used to be known as a "priest's hole," access to which was gained by means of a secret panel.

Not long ago a similar chamber was revealed during the demolition of a building near Kingsway, London. This chamber, which measured 8 feet by 4 feet 6 inches by 6 feet, contained a priest's hat and a pewter mug and plate, while on the walls were various inscriptions, one of them pointing to the fact that the chamber dated from the early part of the Sixteenth century.

During the destruction of an ancient house in Sussex the workmen discovered a smuggler's hiding place, containing a number of rotting bales of lace and several bottles of spirits, together with a miscellaneous collection of empty jars. The house had been in the same family for nearly a century, and no one had suspected the existence of the hidden hoard.

In another Sussex house a secret spring, accidentally discovered during demolition work, disclosed a cupboard in which were a number of costumes and uniforms of the Cromwellian period.

Unfortunately, the fabric of which they were made dropped to pieces as soon as it was exposed to the air, all that remained of the "find" being a collection of dusty buckles and buttons.

Perhaps the most gruesome discovery was that made by a Yorkshire housebreaker who, in pulling down a farmhouse on the Great North road, found a hidden recess behind the paneling of an upper room.

In the recess was the skeleton of a man, garbed in the traditional highwayman's costume, with a brace of pistols by his side.

Judging from the state of the skull, which was badly damaged, the man had committed suicide long years ago, or had been murdered and placed in the recess.—London Tit-Bits.

Among the Cobwebs

The late Bishop Tuttle of St. Louis, apropos of worldly parsons, used to tell a story.

"There was once," he would begin, "a worldly parson in Philadelphia—a great fox-hunter—whom a Spruce street Quaker took in hand.

"'Friend,' said the Quaker. 'I understand thee's clever at fox-catching.'

"'I have few equals and no superiors at that sport,' the parson complacently replied.

"'Nevertheless, friend,' said the Quaker, 'if I were a fox I would hide where thee would never find me.'

"'Where would you hide?' asked the parson, with a groan.

"'Friend,' said the Quaker, 'I would hide in thy study.'"

Norman Conner, 302 Fair street at ten o'clock. Interment in the family plot at Coxsackie, N. Y.

Theodore DeWitt, a native of Callicoon, Sullivan county, and for many years a member of the law firm of DeWitt, Lockman & DeWitt, of New York city, died Friday at Los Angeles, Cal., in his 71st year. He was a son of George C. DeWitt and went to New York city in 1876, entering the law firm of DeWitt, Lockman & Kip, which was founded by his grandfather, Peter DeWitt, in 1804. The firm name was afterwards changed to DeWitt, Lockman & DeWitt, and it occupies now the offices at 88 Nassau street which are at the same location as the offices occupied by the founder of the firm in 1804. Mr. DeWitt was admitted to the bar in 1880, and became a member of the firm in 1896. He seldom appeared in court and devoted himself to the real estate practice, brief work and the preparation of cases for trial. He was widely known among members of his profession and his help was frequently sought on abstruse legal problems. For many years he made his home in Nyack, where his father also was a resident. He is survived by a brother, William G. DeWitt, and a nephew, Edward DeWitt. He was never married.

Quite a Difference

The visitor in that delightful country where so many popular necessities, including murder, have been nationalized, paused at the modest habitation of a native.

Here, surely, would be a proletarian of the proletariat.

"Are you a bolshevik?" he asked.

The citizen paused in the act of scribbling an ode to starvation with his fingernail on the last few inches of wall paper.

"No," he sighed, "I'm a bolshevictim."—Farm Life.

A Call

A millionaire attired in old overalls was touching up the paint here and there in his kitchen. The servants were all out. So when the doorbell rang, he answered it himself. Two fashionable ladies asked if his wife was at home and were politely informed that she was not. As they descended the steps he overheard one saying: "Huh, they pretend to be rich, and yet the butler has to do the painting around the house."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Mayor Block to Start Big Game

Mayor Morris Block has consented to throw over the first ball when the Kingston Colonials and the D. & H. National Guard Boxing Bouts

Actual plans have been put under way for the holding of boxing bouts in the local armory and the first set of bouts are set to be held on Friday evening, April 25. A final conference has been held and the local batteries are now ready to stage the bouts.

Boxing in the armory may be held providing that the pugilists are members of the National Guard. Since the drill sheds have been thrown open in New York state many of the leading boxers have signed up with the various outfits throughout the state, so there would be no trouble in getting good boxers to appear here in exhibitions.

The fights in the armory are not under the supervision or connected with the New York state boxing commission but the state boxing moguls and the guardsmen work hand in hand in protecting promoters and fighters who claim injustice either by contracts or mistreatment. The commission also recognizes penalties to fighters handed out by the guardsmen for running out of fights or poor showing.

One of the strict rulings of the guard boxing officials is that all contestants who plan on engaging in bouts must attend drill regularly. Before taking part in bouts a signed statement from the commanding officer of each contestant is handed the commander of the local armory where the contest is held that the boxer has been attending drills and is in good standing with his own company.

The Week at The High School

Schroeder Tells Student Body of the Advantages at Cornell, and Also of the Kingston Students There—Basketball Results.

Tuesday morning Fred Schroeder, a Kingston High School graduate now at Cornell, spoke at the regular assembly. The week before there had been men from Dartmouth, Union and Ohio Wesleyan. Each had tried to tell the best things about its school and tried to get men for it. Mr. Schroeder also told of the advantages of Cornell.

Cornell is very large, there being over 5,000 students there. It is well equipped in every respect. One can receive any sort of instruction that one pleases and the best teachers are there to give it. Besides the educational advantage of Cornell, Mr. Schroeder spoke of its athletics.

He spoke of Cornell's great football team which has not been beaten in three years. The basketball team won the inter-collegiate championship this year. The baseball and track teams are in shape for a good season.

There are now quite a few Kingston men at Cornell. All are upholding the standards of K. H. S. "Joe" Purcell is now rowing in the varsity crew and is junior member of the student council. Francis Davenport is rowing on the freshman crew. Isaac Reuben made the freshman debating team. Blair Muller wrestled on the varsity wrestling team. Tyron Miller is senior editor of the year book. Schroeder was a member of the varsity debating squad, although he did not mention it. He urged those interested in college to ask for further particulars in regard to Cornell.

Wednesday night a large number of the students attended the performance of and were delighted by the dramatic club play, "Fanny and the Servant Problem."

Friday morning a short musical program was given. The first number was played by the Misses Alice nad Charlotte Gillette as a duet on piano and 'cello. It was a delightful selection and was well rendered. Miss Evelyn Houghtaling then played a piano solo which was good enough to require playing an encore.

Thursday afternoon the woman's faculty basketball team played the sophomore girls for the school championship. The faculty lined up: Miss Kusor and Miss Tidquist, forwards; Miss Schnitzler and Miss Easley, guards, and Miss Cordes at center. Just before the whistle blew to start the game the referee called for silence and said that Miss Cordes was disqualified because she was a professional player and did not have enough high school counts. Of course it was all a joke and was for the amusement of the fans. The faculty were in poor condition and went down to defeat 26 to 3.

Arthur Rice Is Colonial Coach

Arthur Rice, the veteran ball player of this city, is again coach of the Kingston Colonials and he and Judge Harry E. Schirick put the team through its paces at the Kingston Fair Grounds this afternoon. Last season Art served the team as coach so efficiently that he has been retained to act in a similar capacity this season.

All is in readiness for the opening game of the season at the Fair Grounds Sunday afternoon. The game is called for 3:30 o'clock and the D. & H. Generals will be the attraction.

Harry Selxas of the Interstate Umpires' Protective Association, will umpire the game. He has umpired here before.

Battery E Baseball Team

The fact that spring has arrived was confirmed by the large delegation of members of Battery E. 132nd Ammunition Train, at the local armory, when a call was sent out for all the members who wished to play baseball this coming season. An outfit was formed at this meeting and will be known as Battery E Baseball Team. The members present at the meeting started things rolling at once elected Corporal E. Joseph Long as their manager and Priv. Kenneth Gaddis, field captain. The opening workout of the team will take place Sunday afternoon at the Athletic Field.

The soldier boys are now ready to consider booking games and any team wishing to have a chance to play the soldiers will communicate with the manager at the armory.

As the sporting enthusiasm of most of the boys is aroused at this time of the year and as the local battery is in need of several recruits any young man who wishes to belong to the battery is invited to come to the armory any Monday evening and talk the matter over with the boys and sign up.

Confirmation at Redeemer Church

According to the time honored custom of the Lutheran Church, the rite of confirmation will be administered at the morning service of the Church of the Redeemer, at Wurts and Rogers streets, on Palm Sunday. The pastor, the Rev. William J. Nelson, has been instructing a class since early fall. The purpose of the these instructions is to bring the candidate for communicant membership to a knowledge and a sense of responsibility of the baptismal covenant which was assumed by parents or sponsors at baptism. At that time a renunciation, a confession and a promise was made for them, without their knowledge or understanding. This three-fold act involves a renunciation of evil, a confession of the Christian faith as it is set forth in the apostles' creed, and a promise of the righteousness of faith at this maturer age. When, after provision has been made for bringing them to a realization of what was involved in the act through religious instruction in the home, Sunday school and the pastor's class, on their own decision they confirm the obligations assumed for them.

Palm Sunday, because it marks the coming of Jesus to Jerusalem and His reception, especially by the children, is an appropriate season for this act. At the close of the Lenten season and on the threshold of Eastertide when there is a quickening of the spiritual life of the congregation by reason of the closer contemplation of the life and the death of Christ, this confirmation and reception into membership is in the nature of a harvest not only because of the addition to the roll of the congregation, but because of the retrospect that it gives to those who are already enrolled.

The class consists of Charles Dittus, Frederick Spalt, Archie Thomas, Warren Hutton, Olive Kyer, Evelyn Christiana, Ezalea Lang, Cora Dubois and Florence Schussler.
